USPA NEWS - A message from Her Majesty The Queen to the Lord-Lieutenant of Greater Manchester

Published 23 May 2017

The whole nation has been shocked by the death and injury in Manchester last night of so many people, adults and children, who had just been enjoying a concert. She went on to say the people.

I know I speak for everyone in expressing my deepest sympathy to all who have been affected by this dreadful event and especially to the families and friends of those who have died or were injured.

I want to thank all the members of the emergency services, who have responded with such professionalism and care.

And I would like to express my admiration for the way the people of Manchester have responded, with humanity and compassion, to this act of barbarity.

ELIZABETH R.

So many innocent people killed for what for the understanding of what r for the misunderstanding of something so many people get away with different things and then they come back and they become part of an evil act an axe that takes the lives of the innocent

We have to ask ourselves to question why are these people still walking the streets why are these people free why is the Nat safeguards put in place to keep an eye on these people because that safeguards that are in place enough working there's a lot more of these people out there they have to plan in the name of religion I don't think any religion has anything to do with the situation or the mind sense of individuals because religion is supposed to be a community these individuals are Renegades Renegades who go out on their own, I wish I could understand the mindset of these people the satisfaction that they get from the evil acts that they commit from a psychological point of view the brainwashing of Communities and individuals is evil.
